

Seenaa Jimjimo

Ms. Seenaa Jimjimo was born in South Oromia, Ethiopia. From a very young age, she grieved over the injustice she saw growing up. She studied Political Science in hopes of becoming a solution. While at the University of Illinois, she was a graduate student Senator at Large, co-founder and President of African Student Organization at Truman College and Assistant Executive Director for Oromo Community Association of Chicago. Seenaa is a recipient of many awards including Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Scholarship, Mitheny M. Young Fellowship and Preceptorship. Currently she is the President of Coalition of Oromo Advocates for Human Rights and Democracy and an Environmental Health Inspector for Vermilion County Health Department. Ms. Seenaa is an author and a dedicated women's rights activist. She holds Master's Degrees in Public Health and Administration.